This update will be brief as I am starting my “virtual” family holiday today for the next couple of weeks, making the most of our National Trust membership, our garden and the beach. The major consequence of this will be that, regrettably, there will be no Tuesday Coffee morning for the next couple of weeks. For those who attended last Tuesday, Bill took us through the pictures posted on the welcome page of the website. If you look carefully you will see an even younger looking Eileen Piper in one of the photos. Thanks Bill.

Since we have reopened the weather conditions have not been kind to us and play has been tricky. Like any start to a season the greens tend to play slowly but there is much better weather forecasted and the more use they get, the better they will play. The afternoon 1500 to 1700 sessions are quite heavily booked but there is availability for the early afternoon and evening sessions. Mike is updating the bookings on the website at regular intervals. If you are thinking of getting going again, give David Shields a call. The bookings can be found in the members section of the website

The Beast has found its way to Chris Blackburn I hear. Let me know if you would be prepared to shape its future. The Beast\(ess\)

David Shields, the Sitchs and Helen got a maximum 22 in the cryptic place names quiz, whilst last week Bill and Helen tied on 19 points each. Another cryptic about Sweets and biscuits is already available on the website.

It has been a bad year in so many ways and this morning I forwarded belated news from Bill McClenaghan of the funeral of one of our former members Doreen Webber.
